Upon entering on the ground floor, you will be greeted by a panelled hallway leading to a South facing reception room and study to the rear. There is direct access to a private part-patioed, part-grass garden providing plenty of space for outside entertaining plus a rare view of the flat backed terrace that is the rear of Walden Street, scarcely found in London as many were destroyed in WWII.

The lower-ground floor provides a fitted kitchen to the rear, as well as second reception room providing versatile space as either a sitting or dining room. There is also highly convenient storage located in what was once former coal stores accessed directly off the dining area, perfect for wine or even extra appliances.

Heading up to the first floor you will find a well sized double bedroom with double sash windows and two separate bathrooms further along the hall. The second floor consists of two charming attic style bedrooms (one with additional wash basin) that each benefit from full head height.

Walden Street is located in the heart of East London, South of Brick Lane and approximately 0.3 miles from Whitechapel station. The Myrdle Street Conservation Area is a district well-known for its rich heritage in art and culture. There is a wide range of award winning restaurants, barista cafes and boutique shops within a short walk, including Mr White's English Chophouse in the New Road Hotel and the famous Blind Beggar Pub.

Whitechapel is an area of London's East End that over the years has seen and continues to enjoy vast regeneration and investment bringing exciting brands, companies and occupiers to the area. The Royal London Hospital and Whitechapel Gallery plus Spitalfields Market are also close by. Green space isn't far away either with the 213 acre Green Flag award winning Victoria Park (or The People's Park as it's fondly called by locals) a short bus ride away.
